

Client API

Sessions

A Client application establishes a connection to the Server and creates/activates a session within the Server. This session allows the Server to dedicate session-related information to a specific Client application. The following list of components can be used to determine session-related information used while accessing the Server.

- OpcNodeAccessContext

Table of Contents

Sessions	1
-----------------------	---